

Socratis Theodosiou is the Co-CEO of Tototheo Maritime. He began his professional career with Tototheo Maritime shortly after his studies in 2001. He holds a Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration and a Master's Degree in Marketing Management.

During his career, he was trained and certified by leading manufacturers in bridge equipment and services on-board thus having a broad technical knowledge in navigation, safety, IT and satellite communications. He was subsequently certified to train and approve other engineers to carry out onboard services.

Socrates Theodosiou is a member of the PortCDM International Council and a partner of the Cyprus University of Technology (CUT) for research, development and testing of new technologies. Socrates' motivation is his passion for new technologies within the maritime sector and mobile satellite communications. He recently founded MarineFields Holding Ltd, a company that specializes in connecting ships, port and people to achieve Port Call Optimisation through collaborative decision making.